Letter from the Director:

If you've walked through the Garden recently, you've probably noticed some exciting new changes: more flowering cherry trees in the Gude Garden, the Crevice Garden bursting with unusual succulents and cactus, new waterlilies in the Upper Aquatic Garden Pond, and wire-frame trees covered in orchids and bromeliads in the Conservatory. All those projects were designed and completed by our talented horticulturists using funds from our annual operating budget, with support from generous donors. While these smaller projects refresh the Garden and spark our horticultural curiosity, we remain firmly focused on achieving the bigger picture laid out in the Master Plan for Brookside Gardens.

When Brookside Gardens opened in 1969, Montgomery County had a much smaller population, and the garden spaces were sized appropriately to meet the community's needs at the time. Fast-forward 56 years, and the county population has grown to over one million residents—and so has our attendance. We're thrilled to be working with a talented team of Parks' architects, landscape architects, and engineers to re-imagine the Conservatory and the gardens surrounding it. Built in 1968, the Conservatory is the oldest structure at Brookside Gardens. While it continues to serve as a beloved space for visitors, its age brings ongoing maintenance needs and highlights the importance of thoughtful upgrades to support its future. In addition to hosting The Butterfly Experience for five months, the tropical plants and colorful displays give visitors a taste of the world outside Wheaton, including the conservation stories of rare and endangered plant species impacted by human actions and climate change.

What's your favorite experience in the Conservatory? Is it the warm, scented air that wraps around you on a chilly winter day? The gentle ripple of goldfish gliding beneath the soothing sound of the waterfall? Or the vibrant orchids cascading from the trees above? This cherished space has long been a place to gather, relax and learn from nature. And we look forward to when it will be even more inspiring—with a new Conservatory designed to offer more of the color, texture, and fragrance you love.

Staff Updates

Drew Asbury is the new horticulturist responsible for managing the Gude Garden and surrounding landscapes. Drew has worked 'hands-on' in the horticulture industry for nearly 30 years. Prior to joining Brookside Gardens, he worked for 12 years as the Horticulturist and Volunteer Manager at Hillwood Estate, Museum and Garden in Washington, D.C. He graduated from the Longwood Gardens Professional Gardener Training Program in 2006 and obtained a Master of Professional Studies in Sustainable Landscape Design from George Washington University in 2020. When not at work, Drew enjoys gardening at home, hiking, and traveling.

Jacob Roberson joins Brookside Gardens' production team as the Lead Horticultural Support Technician. Jacob brings with him nearly a decade of experience in the agricultural and outdoor sectors. His pursuit of a career in agriculture stemmed from his hands-on experience across several industries, including a small hobby farm, a brewery, a vertical indoor farm, and a wholesale perennial plant nursery. Jacob earned an A.A. in Business Administration from Montgomery College before completing a B.A. in Agricultural and Resource Economics with a minor in Sustainability studies at The University of Maryland (UMD). Additionally, he attended the Institute of Applied Agriculture at UMD, specializing in Sustainable Agriculture. Originally from Tulsa, Oklahoma, and raised in Maryland, Jacob enjoys spending time with his wife, young daughter, two cats, and two dogs. Outside of work, he is an avid gardener, amateur mycologist, and enjoys reading sci-fi and history.

Eva Andersen (she/her) is a rising senior at Georgetown University studying Environmental Biology with minors in Spanish, and Science, Technology, and International Affairs (STIA). After college, she is hoping to pursue a career in conservation and environmental education. She is especially interested in invasive species management. Eva is from Albany, NY which she appreciated being close to many beautiful hikes and trails! She loves to run, bake, and listen to music. Everyone she has met at Brookside so far has been so kind and welcoming, and she is excited to learn more about botany and horticultural management this summer through the internship program.

Prince Ashina (he/him) is a rising second-year Master of Landscape Architecture student at the University of Maryland, College Park, where he also serves as a Graduate Teaching Assistant in the Department of Plant Science and Landscape Architecture. He earned his bachelor's degree in landscape design and management from Kwame Nkrumah University of Science and Technology (KNUST) in Ghana, West Africa. He is passionate about stormwater management and hopes to use landscape design tools to map flood risk and guide smarter land use decisions, particularly in underserved areas. He brings experience in residential landscape construction and maintenance from his time in Ghana and is committed to designing places where people and water can coexist.

Artemis Maziarski (she/her/they) is a rising second year Master of Landscape Architecture student at the University of Maryland in College Park. Her interests include improving access to green spaces for marginalized communities and exploring the future role landscape architects will play in urban forestry. She holds a B.S. in Health Science from Northeastern University and an A.A.S in Horticulture Technology from Northern Virginia Community College. She is originally from New Jersey and currently lives in Silver Spring with her fiancée and two black cats, Minerva and Desdemona. When not in the garden, she enjoys cooking, hiking, sketching, crossword puzzles, and board games. Artemis previously worked at Brookside Gardens as a Gardener Assistant for two seasons and is thrilled to be returning as an intern this summer!

Kelly Sieberts (she/her) is currently entering the second year of her master's degree in landscape architecture at the University of Maryland, College Park. As an active member of the student chapter executive board for the American Society of Landscape Architects, she hopes to establish her niche in therapeutic landscaping design. Her background lies in music education; teaching the violin and other instruments to a wide age range from kindergarten to adults. While working at Williams Sonoma, Kelly learned valuable design principles and skills that transferred to her studies. Additionally, she worked at Patuxent Nursery where she advised customers on indoor and outdoor plant care, fertilizer practices and pest management techniques.

The Butterfly Experience Returns to Brookside Gardens

After a five-year hiatus, Brookside Gardens is once again alive with the color and movement of butterflies from around the world. The newly reimagined exhibit, The Butterfly Experience at Brookside Gardens, opened this spring and has already welcomed thousands of visitors eager to reconnect with this beloved seasonal attraction.

Previously known as Wings of Fancy, the exhibit's new name reflects what guests most often ask: "Where are the butterflies?" We hope this change helps visitors instantly connect with the wonder of the exhibit.

Significant updates have been made to improve the overall experience, which include a refurbished entrance vestibule, a refreshed water feature, and a new glass side wall to enhance visibility and climate control. A new directional path with decals has also been added to manage visitor flow and create a more immersive space for exploration and photography.

The exhibit features butterflies of all shapes, colors, and sizes of both exotic and native species. Inside, visitors will find vibrant planting palettes designed to support various life stages of butterflies. Plants including Aloysia, Pentas, Kalanchoe, Impatiens, and others have been carefully selected to provide nectar for the adult butterflies. Overripe fruit and even Gatorade are also used as supplemental food sources, offering guests an up-close look at butterfly feeding behavior.

A newly trained and passionate staff is on hand to share information about the butterflies and the importance of following

United States Department of Agriculture regulations to ensure exotic species do not escape and disrupt native ecosystems. By sharing this knowledge, we hope to raise awareness of the ecological implications and the importance of responsible exhibit practices. Volunteer docents also play a key role in enhancing the experience by sharing insights into butterfly biology, conservation, and environmental stewardship.

Educational signage has been refreshed to highlight the butterfly life cycle, pollination, and the important relationships between insects and the plants they rely on. The "Fluttering Today" board helps guests identify which species are currently active, and the exhibit is not just about beauty, but an interactive opportunity to understand the importance of insects in our world, from pollination to their vital role in the food chain.

The Butterfly Experience is open daily from 10:00 am to 4:00 pm, with adjusted hours of 10:00 am to 1:00 pm on weekdays from July 1 to August 31 due to summer heat. The Butterfly Experience runs through September 21 and tickets can be purchased at montgomeryparks.org/butterfly

We're thrilled to welcome you back to The Butterfly Experience, where beauty, science, and nature take flight once again.

Nate Roehrich, Assistant Director of Production and Display

Thank you, Butterfly Experience Volunteers

When The Butterfly Experience at Brookside Gardens re-opened on April 10, 2025, over one hundred volunteers had registered and were trained as Docents, eager to share their knowledge of butterflies and plants with visitors.

Having volunteered for the exhibit in the past, Pat Zangrillo was very excited to return this year. Pat shared, "How else could you view butterflies in all their fluttering beauty so up close? The air is alive with wings flying off in all directions. Colorful flowers give them places to land, and make for unique, wonderful photographic opportunities. Almost everyone is tempted to take a photo or two. I know I have shared my images with friends who are not as lucky as I am to be there."

Though the exhibit was physically closed for five years (last opened in 2019), its existence was not forgotten by visitors. Beth Socol had been giving tours of the Gardens as a volunteer and reflected, "For the past couple of years one of the most oft-asked questions I got while conducting garden tours was 'when will the butterfly [exhibit] open back up?'" These questions sparked Beth's interest in volunteering for the exhibit when it was re-opened. As a Butterfly Experience Docent volunteer, Beth says "To see people walk into the exhibit and just gasp at the beauty they are surrounded by always gives me a thrill."

Volunteers add a special touch to the staff who are running the exhibit. Their presence enhances the visitor experience by offering knowledge, and an atmosphere of welcome and kindness. They contribute to our community by helping visitors learn about the ecological importance of butterflies and teach them what they can do in their own backyards to help sustain these extraordinary insects. Beth adds, "People who attend the exhibit are curious and have a lot of questions."

Another volunteer, Lauren Chhay, echoed Beth's sentiment, "I have heard several adults excitedly proclaim they learned something new, I've watched kids become little scientists as they wander the exhibit with magnifying glasses and put to use new knowledge they learned at the information station, and I've been able to interact with several neurodivergent guests in the same patient and fun way past volunteers engaged with my family. I've seen volunteers put smiles on visitors' faces many times whether it be by sharing their excitement, chatting during check-in, helping guests navigate the online ticket purchase process, sharing information, alerting them to butterflies landing on them, offering to take photos of their group, being silly with them during the exit process, or even reminiscing about past visits they or volunteers have made to the Experience."

Thank you, to the one hundred plus volunteers who have contributed their time and energy to make The Butterfly Experience at Brookside Gardens an engaging and educational experience for our visitors.

Kevin Stewart, Volunteer Program Manager

Children's Garden 2025 Redesign Theme: Eco Friends Garden

Over the summer, exciting changes took shape in the Children's Garden. In keeping with the new theme, "Eco Friends Garden," we chose plants and materials that were as eco-friendly as possible to create a fun experience while limiting the impact on the environment and promoting a healthy ecosystem.

Talented craftspeople throughout the Commission collaborated with us to create an engaging garden space for young people. Educators, welders, horticulturists, woodworkers, and visual artists all contributed their skills to this newly renovated area. Most of our favorite features of the Eco Friends Garden include repurposed, reused, or recycled materials.

We partnered with the Wheaton Arts Parade to hire five local artists to share their interpretations of Maryland native birds on flamingo topiary forms that are repurposed from an earlier exhibit. The red cardinal, orange oriole, yellow goldfinch, green hummingbird, and blue... (you guessed it!) bluebird create a rainbow of color. No pink flamingos allowed! These birds highlight the delicate relationships between plants and wildlife that sustain our local ecosystems in a playful, larger-than-life way.

The playhouse has been repurposed and refreshed with a four-sided mural celebrating important local plants. The native flora include winterberry (Ilex verticillata), Turk's cap lily (Lilium superbum), black-eyed Susan (Rudbeckia hirta), royal fern (Osmunda regalis), Virginia bluebells (Mertensia virginica) and blue flag iris (Iris versicolor).

Repurposed, durable, local lumber harvested by Montgomery Parks' arborists and stone will be featured prominently throughout the space. Some of our favorite examples of these materials in the Eco Friends Garden are the natural wood benches, reading thrones, wooden balance beams and logs, a willow tunnel, and tiered boulders.

As you already know, all our garden spaces are functioning ecosystems affected not only by the plants we cultivate, but also by weather, geology, and local wildlife. We love to promote these relationships in a way that children can enjoy. Although we've highlighted a few features in this article, we recommend coming to explore the Eco Friends Garden in person to get the full effect. After all, anyone, regardless of age, who is willing to take care of the people, animals, insects, and plants around them is welcome in the Eco Friends Garden. We look forward to seeing you there soon.

Liz Bullock, Youth Education Manager;
Thomas Crawley, Horticulturist
